ADMINISTRATIVE APPOINTMENTS

Arizona State University

Vice Provost, Polytechnic Campus 2015-2021

In this role I focus on building community on the Polytechnic campus and coordinating activities across the colleges that offer programs on the campus. I also work closely with local government, business, educational, and community groups.

Arizona State University, College of Integrative Sciences and Arts/University College

Dean, College of Integrative Sciences and Arts (formerly Letters and Sciences) 2015-2021

The college offers degrees on the Tempe, Polytechnic, and Downtown Phoenix campuses, as well as at some of the community colleges across the state. We also offer online degrees with robust enrollments. I have worked with colleagues to build enrollment in degree programs, to increase research grant funding, and to offer several large-scale courses in ASU's Global Freshman Academy, which makes learning accessible to hundreds of thousands of people across the globe. The college has a strong partnership with ASU Online/EdPlus. More than 8,000 students major in programs that the college offers.

Dean, University College 2015-2019

I worked with colleagues to reorganize University College, which now houses a wide range of academic success programs and resources across ASU's campuses in metropolitan Phoenix: tutoring centers, writing centers, supplemental instruction, First-Year Success, American Indian Student Support Services, degree and career exploration, and academic success courses. Data indicate that these programs help with retention and graduation rates.

Interim Dean, College of Letters and Sciences 2014-2015

The College of Letters and Sciences offers a wide range of degrees, as well as the degree and career exploratory program, on the Tempe, Polytechnic, and Downtown Phoenix campuses. I collaborated with ASU and community college colleagues to launch four-year degrees on the Eastern Arizona College campus in Thatcher.

Interim Dean, University College 2014-2015

At the time, University College offered academic success courses, as well as degree and career exploration courses—all under the UNI prefix.

Head, Technical Communication 2010-2012

I administered an undergraduate degree program in Technical Communication, graduate courses in the field, and other courses that fulfill requirements for other degrees at ASU.

Head, Interdisciplinary and Liberal Studies 2009-2014

I worked with colleagues to offer several interdisciplinary degrees: (1) Bachelor of Interdisciplinary Studies, (2) Bachelor of Liberal Studies, (3) Bachelor of Interdisciplinary Studies in Organizational Studies, and (4) Bachelor of Arts in Organizational Leadership.

Arizona State University, Office of the University Provost

Assistant Vice Provost for University Academic Success Programs (UASP) 2010-2015

I oversaw subject-area tutoring, the writing centers, supplemental instruction, the transition program for entering first-year students, and academic success courses on all four ASU metro campuses. American Indian Student Support Services, which provides a wide range of services to students on all four local campuses, also reports to me.

Arizona State University, School of Applied Arts and Sciences

Head, Humanities and Arts 2004-2009

I worked with colleagues to expand offerings in English, history, art, communication, mass media/media studies, philosophy, dance, music, religious studies, theatre, interdisciplinary studies, and honors. (During my first year in the job, I also handled sociology, women's studies, political science, and anthropology.) I particularly focused on adding courses that fulfill general studies requirements, especially for lower-division students. I coordinated the activities of a small but growing group of tenure-track faculty, lecturers, and faculty associates. I also worked closely with colleagues—both faculty and administrative staff—to hire a half dozen new tenure-track faculty members and dozens of new faculty associates. Further, I collaborated with colleagues to establish degrees in Literature, Writing, and Film; as well as History and Culture. Colleagues and I also established the Project for Writing and Recording Family History. When I began working in this position, 383 students were enrolled in our courses. By spring 2008 the enrollment had grown to 4,719.

Arizona State University, Office of the Executive Vice President and Provost of the University

Director, Center for Learning and Teaching Excellence (CLTE) 2000-2004

Interim Director, Center for Learning and Teaching Excellence 1999-2000

As director, I worked with colleagues in the Center for Learning and Teaching Excellence, as well as many faculty and administrators across the university, to offer activities and resources for the teaching corps on all three campuses of ASU. During my term, CLTE developed close working relationships with other teaching-support offices at ASU and with the Maricopa Center for Learning and Instruction. The center also greatly expanded its offerings for faculty and teaching assistants. In addition to enhancing the activities for new faculty, we offered scores of workshops each semester—some university-wide and some for specific departments or colleges. In 2000, I worked with many colleagues to develop the ASU Summer Institute on College Teaching, which expanded in 2001 to include the ASU Winter Institute on College Teaching. In 2002, we also began offering institutes during the fall and spring semesters. The center also collaborated with or supported many faculty members in writing instructional grants. As director of CLTE, I also served as the ASU liaison to the Campus Program of the American Association for Higher Education. In that role, I helped to bring both recognition and resources to ASU.

Arizona State University, College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, Department of English

Co-Director, Ph.D. Program, Rhetoric/Composition and Linguistics	1996-1997
Director, M.A. Program, Rhetoric and Composition	1995-1997
Director of English Composition	1995-1999

As director of English Composition, I supervised a teaching staff of approximately 140 teaching assistants and associates, faculty associates, instructors, lecturers, and tenure-track and tenured faculty. At the time, the program offered more than 600 course sections serving approximately 13,000 students each year. During my tenure as director, I also worked each year with 25-35 new teaching assistants/associates, offering them three weeks of preparation in August, a three-credit teaching practicum in the fall, and weekly meetings throughout the spring. As director, I worked with colleagues to institute a portfolio evaluation system for first-year courses in 1996, and later linked students' portfolios to a set of nationally developed learning outcomes. In 1997, I oversaw an initiative to offer course sections of composition in computer-mediated classrooms, and those offerings grew to more than 60 sections per semester by 1999.

Syracuse University

Director, Writing Program	1993-1994
---------------------------	-----------

In this position, I reported to the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. At the time, the Writing Program had about a half dozen tenure-line faculty members and approximately 60 contract faculty and teaching assistants. During my term as director I was able to acquire substantial building space for the unit. I also successfully recruited Keith Gilyard to join the faculty.

SERVICE RECORD

Professional Development Workshops

At the University of Arizona, Syracuse University, and Arizona State University I have conducted many series of professional-development workshops for graduate students. At the University of Arizona those workshops occurred twice weekly all year long. At Syracuse University they occurred occasionally. At Arizona State University, under the sponsorship of the Graduate Scholars in English Association, as well as the Preparing Future Faculty Program and the Graduate College/Graduate Education, I have conducted hundreds of workshops since 1996.

Presentations/Consultations for Teachers, Students, Parents, and Community Groups

I have conducted more than seventy in-service workshops in Arizona public schools since 1982. In Syracuse, I conducted seven in-service workshops on campus or in schools. Upon request, I will be pleased to provide specific details about the nature of those presentations. Since 1988, I have conducted regular professional-development workshops for graduate students—about thirty per year in recent years. From 1999 through 2004, I regularly conducted workshops as part of my role in the Center for Learning and Teaching Excellence. Since 2008, I have conducted scores of workshops on writing family history throughout Arizona. I currently offer two or more each month.

Manuscript Reviews for Publishers

Since 1986, I have reviewed scores of manuscripts for the following publishers: Cambridge University Press, National Council of Teachers of English, Oxford, Wadsworth, Prentice Hall, D.C. Heath, McGraw-Hill, Harper and Row/HarperCollins, Macmillan, Longman, St. Martin's, Allyn and Bacon, Houghton Mifflin, Peter Lang, Christopher-Gordon, Jossey-Bass, and Lawrence Erlbaum.
